

List of International Organizations Approved for Detail and Transfer of Federal Employees

An agency may detail or transfer an employee to any organization that the Department of State has designated as an international organization (see the list below). An employee normally may not be detailed or transferred for more than 5 cumulative years. However, if requested by the head of the agency and approved by the Department of State, a detail or transfer may be extended for up to an additional 3 years. (Requests for extensions should be directed to the address at the end of this document.) Each employee who transfers is entitled to be reemployed (as provided in 5 CFR 352 Subpart C) in his or her former position or one of like status within 30 days of his or her application for reemployment.

The list below does not determine whether an entity is an international organization for the purpose of other statutes or regulations. It will be updated periodically as new organizations are added or deleted.

NOTES:

The preceding list contains the names of a number of small and highly specialized international bodies which may not maintain large secretariats and are not expected to require the full-time services of Federal personnel. They have been included on the list because they may request the short-term detail of a Federal employee.

While the U.S. Government participates in other international organizations not listed here, the degree of participation may not be enough to warrant designating the organization as an international organization for the purpose of details and transfers. The Department of State will consider the status of such organizations under the detail and transfer statutory provisions on a case-by-case basis.

This list does not include the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO). Although it qualifies as an international organization, assignments of Federal personnel are coordinated by the Department of State and are made under statutory authority other than Public Law 85-795.

Requests for information on adding an organization to the present list should be addressed to EmploymentUN@state.gov or the following:
